

EVOLUTION

A Singular Species: The Science of Being Human

By THE EDITORS | Scientific American September 2018 Issue

1. What Made Us Unique
by Kevin Laland

2. The Ancient Roots of the Internal-Combustion Engine
by Lewis Dartnell, José Miguel Mayo and Matthew Twombly

3. Two Mental Abilities Separate Humans from Animals
by Thomas Suddendorf

4. Are Humans the Only Conscious Animal?
by Susan Blackmore

5. The Cultural Origins of Language
by Christine Kenneally

6. What Makes the Human Brain Special by Chet C. Sherwood and Mesa Schumacher

7. Why Is Homo Sapiens the Sole Surviving Member of the Human Family?
by Kate Wong

8. The Origins of Human Morality
by Michael Tomasello

9. War Is Not Part of Human Nature

by R. Brian Ferguson

10. Cities Are Forcing a New Era of Rapid Evolution

by Menno Schilthuizen

11. Artificial Intelligence Will Serve Humans, Not Enslave Them

by Pedro Domingos

12. Are Humans Alone in the Milky Way?

by John Gribbin

This article was originally published with the title "A Singular Species: The Science of Being Human"

ABOUT THE AUTHOR(S)

THE EDITORS

Recent Articles

Clinical Trials Have Far Too Little Racial and Ethnic Diversity

Top Priorities for Trump's Science Advisor

Cities Need to Prepare for Water Day Zero

LATEST NEWS